Grand Central. 1 Cloth(s), 2014. hard. Book Condition: New. In this wise and elegant book, Jane Goodall illuminates the critical role that trees and plants play in our world, from her home in England to her home-away-from-home deep in Africa's Gombe forest. She introduces us to botanists around the globe, as well as places where hope for plants can be found, including the incalculably precious Millennium Seed Bank. Looking at the world as an adventurer, scientist, and devotee of sustainable foods and gardening and setting forth simple steps we can all take to protect the plants around us Goodall reveals the miraculous healing power found in the secret world of plants, and reacquaints us with the wonders in our own backyard. "I didn't expect [the book] to create a powerful shift inside me. But it did. What I'd never fully gotten before this book is how knowledge could awaken feelings of intimacy. As I read Seeds of Hope, again and again I felt appreciation, gratitude and awe. I actually found myself loving our earth more." Huffington Post "Though Goodall is known everywhere as the chimpanzee expert who transformed our understanding of primates and ourselves, it comes as no surprise that her profound love of nature and vigorous global activism extend to the plant kingdom. Goodall begins this tribute to the glory of plants and trees and protest against their endangerment with memories of her grandmother's English country home, where her best friend was a large, cradling beech. She also shares her reverence for the forests of Gombe that nurture chimpanzees. In this far-ranging, gracefully impassioned book, Goodall, aided by frequent coauthor Hudson, shares her fascination with the beingness of plants, from the miracles of seeds to photosynthesis and astonishing strategies of seed dispersal, pollination, defense, and communication. She writes of her mystical experiences with trees,...
